A Word to the Wise

"When you have a box of crayons, don't try to shoehorn the deep red into the orange. Absence diminishes increases great ones, parallel with nature." — Francois de la Rochefoucauld, 1613-1680

"In my heart, I have made a pilgrimage..." — M.F.K. Fisher, journalist and autobiographer, "Saw Paris" 1941

"The best time is now. When you know where you’re going, you can’t get there. But when you don’t know, you’re halfway there. I’m not a tourist. I’m a pilgrim. I became a pilgrim when I got up this morning and walked into the world, knowing that no matter what I encounter, it will be a reflection of myself. And I’m not afraid. I’m not afraid of disappointment, nor of success. I’m not afraid of the unknown. I’m not afraid of the known. I’m not afraid of anyone’s looks, anyone’s words, anyone’s deeds. I’m not afraid of anything. I’m not afraid of anything, and I’m not afraid of myself. I’m not afraid of anything." — Oscar Hammerstein II, composer
